

5 simple steps to accreditation

1. Becoming an NCFE centre

If you don't currently work with us and want to offer a Customised Qualification or Endorsed Programme, you'll need to apply for centre approval.

2. Reviewing your content

Once your centre has gained approval, we'll then start the review of your content – benchmarking it against our levelling system to ensure it's of the highest quality.

3. Adding your qualification or programmes to our systems

Having accreditation or endorsement from a nationally recognised awarding organisation is a stamp of approval which can enhance the value of your training, giving you recognition for the quality and robustness of your qualification or programme.

4. Delivering your qualification or programme

Once accredited, you can begin delivering your qualification or programme with the knowledge it has been approved by us.

5. Certification

If your learners have completed a Customised Qualification, you can then go ahead and claim for their certificates via our user-friendly Portal. You'll receive not only a hard copy, but a digital version too. For Endorsed Programmes, you can go ahead and issue your own certificates with our endorsed logo. For both options, you will be able to issue digital badges to recognise learner achievements.
